Boston Chinatown Massacre

$30,000 Reward for Fugitive on Anniversary of 1991 Quintuple Murders

In a renewed bid to bring closure to a horrific crime that has haunted the city of Boston and its Chinatown neighborhood for 30 years, the FBI and Boston Police are hoping a $30,000 reward will help shed new light on the whereabouts of a lone remaining fugitive suspected in the execution-style murders of five men in 1991.

In the early morning hours of January 12, 1991, Hung Tien Pham, a Vietnamese national of Chinese descent, entered a social club on Tyler Street with two accomplices and allegedly shot six men at close range as they played cards. Five of the men died; one survived and identified the shooters. Two of the shooters were arrested in China in 1998 and were ultimately convicted in Suffolk County of the murders. But Pham, who had ties to an Asian organized crime network in Boston and beyond, remains a fugitive. He was last seen in Thailand in the mid- to late-1990s.

cold-blooded killer has been on the run for 30 years, and we're hoping this reward will incentivize anyone with information on Pham's whereabouts to come forward," FBI Boston Special Agent in Charge Joseph R. Bonavolonta said during a press conference on the 30th anniversary of what's often called the Boston Chinatown Massacre. "We will not rest until Pham has been held accountable."

Pham is now 60 years old. At the time of the murders, he had black hair, brown eyes, and weighed approximately 115 to 135 pounds. He stood about 5 feet 3 inches tall and was known to like flashy cars, spending money, and sipping cognac. In the early '90s, Pham was a known associate of the Ping On crime syndicate and had ties to Philadelphia, Chicago, San Francisco, and Toronto.

"By all accounts, he was the linchpin of the execution of the homicides," said FBI Special Agent Tom Zukauskas, who works on a violent crimes task force in the Boston Field Office. The FBI task force has been working closely with the Boston Police Department and local prosecutors with the Suffolk County District Attorney's office to generate new leads in a case that has reverberated for years.

The FBI initially got involved when the suspects fled the state to New Jersey and then overseas. And the Bureau assisted police in bringing Nam The Tham and Siny Van Tran back to Boston to face trial in 2005, when Pham's accomplices were each sentenced to multiple life terms. But FBI Boston says the 30-year-old case represents more than probing a homicide suspect's unlawful flight to avoid prosecution; it's about justice for victims who are the fabric of the community.

"We know this crime has haunted the Chinatown community for decades, and we hope this renewed effort will produce real results that might give the victims' families—who have already endured so much heartache—some much-needed closure," said Bonavolonta.

Hung Tien Pham is wanted for his alleged involvement in the execution-style murders of five men at a Chinatown social club in Boston.

Investigators have not assigned a motive to the shootings. They say that after the executions, Pham fled to Atlantic City to gamble, then to New York City, where he boarded a flight to Hong Kong.

"We're not sure if it was a robbery or if it was just bad blood between rival groups, but they did go in there with a plan, and they did go in there shooting, and five of the six people that were there ended up dying," said Daniel Duff, a lieutenant detective with the Boston Police Department who is investigating the case.

Duff had been on the police force for a year when the shootings occurred. He said many remember the night of January 12, 1991, because it was so shocking—a quintuple murder.

"I think it affected everyone, not only in the city but the surrounding areas, too," he said. "Chinatown is a big tourist area. When you hear there's been people murdered in Chinatown, that can send the wrong signal to people that maybe this isn't a safe area. I think the community, which is very tight-knit, had to deal with their own fear, but also the fact that people might stop coming into their community because of what happened."

Investigators have released crime scene images from the case files and published a new wanted poster and an age-pro-

Agg. Assault

Jairus Miller, 27, W 9th Avenue Lenoir City, was charged with Aggravated Assault.

Officer R. Miller LCPD, responded to 9th Avenue in reference to a possible armed subject. Dispatch advised that the armed subject had fled on foot from the house in an unknown direction wearing a pair of jeans, no shirt and no shoes. On scene Officer made contact with the victim, who appeared intoxicated and stated he had been drinking. Victim stated that he was visiting his friend who lives at the address. Victim advised that when his friends boyfriend Mr. Jairus Miller returned home, Miller became upset wanting victim to leave due to him hanging out with his boyfriend.

Victim advised that Miller kept asking him to leave the residence, and then processed by walking into the bedroom to retrieve a handgun. Victim then stated that Miller pointed the small silver handgun at him telling him to get out of his house. Once the gun had been pointed victim contacted law enforcement and Miller left the residence on foot. On scene officers were able to locate Miller who was in the wooded area behind the house. Miller stated that he did point the gun at Sears telling him to leave the house.

gressed image of Pham, along with the $30,000 reward. They are hoping to jog the memories of witnesses or anyone who might be able to fill in blanks in the case.

"We're looking for any information that can lead us to locating and apprehending Pham," said Zukauskas. He said people—neighbors and coworkers past and present—may not realize they have information that could help. "We're hoping to put all these pieces together," he said, and bring the FBI's worldwide resources to bear on this case.

No amount of information is too small. "We're hoping that anyone who might recognize him will help us out," Duff said. "People might not want to get involved. The reward is a big part of that. Just because someone doesn't know where he is right now doesn't mean that where he was a year or two ago wouldn't be helpful to us. It would give us direction."

to act, but some of the pieces seem to be missing. It could be hard to make a decision, since you don't have the whole picture in front of you. You're better off spending this day outside with a group of friends rather than trying to make any major life decisions or commitments.

Pisces 2/19-3/20

Be the star of your own movie and proud of the role you play, Pisces. You might find yourself taking on many different characters, depending on your mood of the hour. Aries 3/21-4/19

Communicate your dreams and bring things into balance.

Taurus 4/20-5/20

Things are flowing your way, Taurus, and you should find a great deal of pleasure in the company of others. There may be an element of fantasy about the day that causes you to lose track of time and space. Don't bother connecting to reality if you don't have to. Go to an art museum or attend a dance performance. See a movie and go out to your favorite restaurant.

Gemini 5/21-6/20

Don't try to nail down any answers today, Gemini, because you will probably end up feeling frustrated. The less you try to force your will on others, the more you will find that things just automatically go your way. Today isn't about finding solutions to problems. It's about enjoying what you've already learned and accomplished. Keep things light.

Cancer 6/21-7/22

Let your childlike side come out and play today, Cancer. Your dreams are in full force, so let them lead the way. Enjoy lighthearted conversations with friends about the latest movies or novels. The answers may be subtle, but they're there. Fantasy and a playful attitude will lead you to them effortlessly. Spread your ideas to the world, and encourage others to join in your daydreams.

Libra 9/23-10/22

Things may seem surreal today, Libra, so don't take other people's chatter too seriously. This is a day to reach out and touch someone, so pick up the phone. It's a good day to share your dreams, no matter how farfetched they sound. Others may look at you as if you have three heads, but as long as you're being honest with yourself, there's no reason to be shy about sharing.

Scorpio 10/23-11/21

You may find it hard to take a realistic approach to your emotions today, Scorpio. A sensitive issue may pull on you, leaving you feeling like you're out in left field in the way you relate to others. You might want to consider letting someone else take the lead for once, allowing you to regain your equilibrium before the next decision needs to be made.

Sagittarius 11/22-12/21

Question the validity of anything you come in conflict with today, Sagittarius. You might find that people act on incomplete information, and that they're falsely accusing you of something you didn't say or do. Work to bring harmony to the situation by getting to the truth and helping to make the real motivations known. Words may be charged with strong emotions, so be gentle.

Capricorn 12/22-01/19

Today is a great day for you. You should enjoy a great deal of playful conversation, Capricorn. Fantasy is likely to play a big role in events, and you may daydream as you walk down the street. Don't bother with reality if you don't have to. You're much better off keeping the tone light and playful. Enjoy your fantasy world and feel free to invite others into it.

CDC Expands Negative COVID-19 Test Requirement to All Air Passengers Entering the United States

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention is expanding the requirement for a negative COVID-19 test to all air passengers entering the United States. Testing before and after travel is a critical layer to slow the introduction and spread of COVID-19. This strategy is consistent with the current phase of the pandemic and more efficiently protects the health of Americans.

Variants of the SARS-CoV-2 virus continue to emerge in countries around the world, and there is evidence of increased transmissibility of some of these variants. With the US already in surge status, the testing requirement for air passengers will help slow the spread of the virus as we work to vaccinate the American public.

Before departure to the United States, a required test, combined with the CDC recommendations to get tested again 3-5 days after arrival and stay home for 7 days post-travel, will help slow the spread of COVID-19 within US communities from travel-related infections. Pre-departure testing with results known and acted upon before travel begins will help identify infected travelers before they board airplanes.

Air passengers are required to get a viral test (a test for current infection) within the 3 days before their flight to the U.S. departs, and provide written documentation of their laboratory test result (paper or electronic copy) to the airline or provide documentation of having recovered from COVID-19. Airlines must confirm the negative test result for all passengers or documentation of recovery before they board. If a passenger does not provide documentation of a negative test or recovery, or chooses not to take a test, the airline must deny boarding to the passenger.

"Testing does not eliminate all risk," says CDC Director Robert R. Redfield, MD, "but when combined with a period of staying at home and everyday precautions like wearing masks and social distancing, it can make travel safer, healthier, and more responsible by reducing spread on planes, in airports, and at destinations."

This order was signed by the CDC Director on January 12, 2021 and will become effective on January 26, 2021.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES

CDC works 24/7 protecting America's health, safety and security. Whether disease start at home or abroad, are curable or preventable, chronic or acute, or from human activity or deliberate attack, CDC responds to America's most pressing health threats. CDC is headquartered in Atlanta and has experts located throughout the United States and the world.
