With Overdose Deaths at a Historic High, FBI and Partners Target Online Drug Markets

An international law enforcement effort targeting illegal drugs on the dark web resulted in 150 arrests and seizures of more than $31 million in 2021. This footage is from multiple search operations that included the FBI, federal agency partners, and local police.

As the coronavirus pandemic spread through the United States, the existing epidemic of drug addiction accelerated alongside it.

In its preliminary data, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reported that overdose deaths reached an all-time high in the 12 months after pandemic-related lockdowns began in the U.S. Nearly 100,000 fatal overdoses were recorded from March 2020 to March 2021.

It was a hard, deadly year in America.

In a conference room space used by the partner agencies that form the Joint Criminal Opioid and Darknet Enforcement (JCODE) team, an FBI analyst is examining the online marketplaces that have made it possible for users to get potentially deadly drugs delivered to their doors obscuring the user's IP address and encrypting information. But the markets themselves look like standard e-commerce sites, complete with pictures, customer reviews, and listings for not only drugs like cocaine and methamphetamine but what sellers claim are brand name prescription medications.

"These markets give an illusion that what you're looking at is from the supply chain or it's from a professional in some way, shape, or form," said Katherine Brennan, a management analyst with the FBI who supports the JCODE initiative. "But these are pills pressed with fentanyl in somebody's home or a warehouse. They're very dangerous. There is no oversight or testing. They're not coming from a place where people are following policies and procedures to create medication or other products in a way that's safe."

Fentanyl is a powerful, dangerous synthetic opioid that is now present in many street drugs and also used in most of the pain pills sold illegally online.

Prescription drugs, and certainly prescription pain killers that contain opioids, can and have caused overdoses and deaths, but counterfeit pills that hold an unknown amount of fentanyl present an even greater risk. The Drug Enforcement Administration's One Pill Can Kill public awareness campaign reported that two out of every five pills the agency seized and tested contained enough fentanyl to be potentially fatal.

Brennan also wants parents, educators, and family members to understand that these darknet sites are not hard to use or hard to access. You don't need special equipment or technical knowledge. And cryptocurrencies, the preferred method of payment for these sites, have become mainstream and easy to use.

"It's a business," said Brennan. "They're running a marketplace that's designed to sell products. If people can't get to that site and if they can't purchase products, then it's not working. Darknet market activity from kids, at risk individuals, or those who are suffering from addiction is something to keep an eye out for."

FBI agents who support a digital organized crime task force in southern Ohio stress that these darknet sites are not the only source in a drug trade that is rapidly moving online. With increasing law enforcement pressure on darknet sites and some major market disruptions, drug transactions are also occurring on encrypted apps and even on popular, mainstream social media platforms.

As the drug trade has gone high tech, agents are also seeing a new generation of dealers. "Every person we have arrested in this space has a college education," one agent said of the cases his Cincinnati-based unit has worked. "They can really speak intuitively to the technology being used, and that is a real contrast from more traditional drug traffickers." They also tend to have a deeper knowledge of cryptocurrencies—something the agents say is now a common thread in crimes that range from drug trafficking to romance scams.

A case involving a group of young, technology-adept suspects brought these Ohio-based agents to Houston, Texas, in June 2021. Their investigation was one of several carried out this year as JCODE agencies worked with state and local partners to keep pressure on buyers and sellers and disrupt these markets.

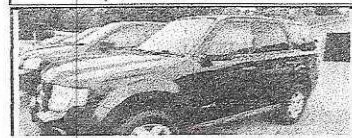

Because these operations easily cross state and national borders and touch the mail stream and a number of financial instruments, the response to them must be coordinated among federal partners. JCODE investigations combine the strengths of the FBI, U.S. Postal Inspection Service, Homeland Security Investigations, Drug Enforcement Administration, Internal Revenue Service, and Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms, and Explosives. The Department of Justice, Financial Crimes Enforcement Network, Naval Criminal Investigative Service, Department of Defense, and U.S. Customs and Border Protection also provide expertise and support.

Kevin Helton, 33, Loudon Ridge Road Loudon, was charged with Simple Possession x2, and Public Intoxication.

Deputy Bengel LCSO, walked into the EZ Stop on W Broadway and observed the Offender, later identified as Kevin Helton, at the counter purchasing items. While observing Helton, he appeared to be under the influence with the way he hunched down towards the counter, his mannerisms, and had frothy spit at the corners of his mouth. After his transaction, Helton walked out of the store. The clerk made an unsolicited comment about Helton's level of sobriety.

Deputy followed Helton out of the store and observed him walk North on E street. Helton opened the door of an unoccupied green Chevy sedan. The Chevy was parked in the travel lane and in oncoming traffic. Deputy got into my patrol vehicle and continued to observe Helton. Helton got into the passenger seat of said vehicle and appeared to be fumbling around inside.

Helton got in and out of the car multiple times. After several minutes, Helton turned the headlights on from the passenger side, got back out, and entered the driver's seat. Deputy got out of his patrol car and while approaching the Chevy, Helton got out and began walking towards him. Deputy made contact with Helton who still appeared to be intoxicated. While speaking to Helton he consented to SFST. Helton performed poorly on all tasks and due to the totality of circumstances he was subsequently taken into custody. Deputy searched Helton, incident to arrest. Located in Helton's left front pants pocket Deputy located an open Marlboro pack with 1 Marijuana Cigarette inside.

Deputy also located an orange prescription pill bottle labeled "Buprenorphine 8 MG" in Helton's right front pants pocket. The bottle had 26 partial Xanax pills at various lengths. Deputy put them together and there were roughly 8.25 total pills. Helton was transported to the Loudon County Jail. Helton is being charged with Public Intoxication and Simple Possession X2. Said events occurred in Loudon County, TN.

doing more than you are to make a difference. This is a laudable goal, but you're more apt to see the romantic side of helping the needy than the harsh realities of the situation. Before deciding to tackle any new ambition today, consider it from all angles. You might change your mind.

Sagittarius 11/22-12/21
Have you ever longed to be a movie star or participate in some way in the film industry? Today you might get your chance or at least learn some of the technical skills required. You might take some time to learn about computer graphics or the ins and outs of camerawork. You could also meet some people involved in this industry.

Capricorn 12/22-01/19
You've been exerting yourself a little too much over the past few days and might feel a little listless. Nonetheless, your mind is still active, and you may seek stimulation through books, TV, or lectures of some kind. You should find whatever you learn exciting. It could set you off in a new direction. Today you could turn into an armchair traveler!

Aquarius 1/20-2/18
You could have some very strange yet beautiful dreams today. Write them down. They're trying to tell you something. You could also make an off-the-wall plan to increase your income that may or may not work. Consider all the aspects of your plan and get in touch with the reality of it before delving too far. It might be workable but not in the ways you think now.

Pisces 2/19-3/20
Today you may start to see your friends in a new light. Perhaps their accomplishments have aroused your admiration. A special person could seem more perfect than ever, and you could suddenly view your friend through a romantic haze once more. Bear in mind that your view of these people only mirrors your view of yourself. Recognize your merits as well others'.

Aries 3/21-4/19
You might feel a little under the weather today, but mentally you're flying high. Ideas could keep popping into your head, sending you into flights of fancy that excite your creativity. This is a great day to read or watch documentaries or otherwise feed your intellect. Whatever you learn could be of great practical use to you later.

Taurus 4/20-5/20
Today you might seek to expand your knowledge of the arts. You could decide to explore galleries, attend a concert or play, or look into the latest best sellers. A friend could accompany you. Make a day of it! Books, antiques, or other fine objects might be especially appealing now. Try to avoid shopping. You'll discover a lot of items you like and want to buy!

Gemini 5/21-6/20
Today you might have the desire to look into your genealogy. The Internet has made it possible for everyone to learn about their ancestors, and now is a great time for you to do it. Spiritually, you might also decide to explore past lives or get in touch with spirit guides or totem animals. Group activities could be of great help in these pursuits.

Cancer 6/21-7/22
Practical, scientific, or spiritual ideas of all kinds are your life's blood. Today you might expand your knowledge. Much of what you learn may be based on technology such as telescopes or particle accelerators. You're only scratching the surface today. Much of what you learn may be confusing, but stay with it. It will make more sense to you later.

Leo 7/23-8/22
Today you might enlist the aid of friends to increase your computer skills. You may be interested in the artistic side of computers and want to experiment with computer graphics or animation. Video journalism could also be of interest. You might receive some unexpected good news about a possible increase in income, though it might be delayed.

Virgo 8/23-9/22
A new romance could come your way. An old friend could suddenly seem like more to you, sending the relationship in an entirely new direction. The opposite could happen, too. An old love could reappear and resurrect the intellectual side of your relationship, making a new friend out of an old love. Circumstances around you are changing and so are you. You're the type to welcome it!

Libra 9/23-10/22
Insights that well up from deep within you could put your imagination into overdrive. Perhaps ideas for essays, poems, paintings, or music flow into your mind in waves. You may want to stay home to develop them, though you may take one friend, or perhaps your partner, into your confidence. Keep the ideas coming! They might mean more to you later.
