State Rep. Lowell Russell, R-Vonore, today announced the Cora Veal Senior Center Madisonville will receive a $5,000 grant through the Tennessee Commission on Aging and Disability (TCAD).

The grant is part of a $400,000 allocation provided by the Tennessee General Assembly for senior centers around the state and administered through TCAD.

"Our senior centers play a vital role in our community by promoting healthy aging and giving seniors access to resources that help them stay active and independent," said Russell. "I appreciate TCAD's commitment to improving the lives of our aging adults."

The funds will be used for operating, ad-

FBI Leaders Recognize Citizens Academy Alumni for Building Trust and Support in Communities

Attendees at the National Leadership Conference of the FBI Citizens Academy Alumni Association.

Members from 58 chapters of the non-profit FBI Citizens Academy Alumni Association gathered for a National Leadership Conference in Las Vegas in September.

Nearly 30 years ago, the FBI launched a Citizens Academy in its Phoenix Field Office to give local civic leaders a behind-the-scenes look at how the Bureau investigates crimes and national security threats. Over the course of several weeks, participants learned from FBI personnel the finer points of investigating crime scenes, protecting civil rights, firearms safety, and how the FBI relies on partnerships to protect and serve the community.

Today, every one of the FBI's 56 field offices hosts a Citizens Academy, and more than 45,000 people have graduated from the six- to eight-week program. Many find it so rewarding they join their local chapters of the non-profit FBI Citizens Academy Alumni Association, which supports the FBI's mission through local volunteer work that high-

Jack Jeffers, 23, Lakebrooke Blvd. Knoxville, was charged with Indecent Exposure.

Officer Ketner LCPD, was dispatched to the Kings Inn on highway 321 in reference to an indecent exposure. Officer arrived on scene and spoke with the victim. The victim stated that when she got to her room she heard a knock on the door and answered it. There was an unknown male wanting directions to Wal-Mart. She noticed that his genitals were exposed. He asked her if she was alone and she stated that her husband was on his way home. She asked the subject to leave several times and he stated that he needed to use the restroom while "swinging" his genitals. Victim then shut the door and noticed that he was driving a white Daytons Pest control truck. Officers contacted Dayton's Pest control and identified the driver as Jack Jeffers. Mr. Jeffers returned to the scene and stated that he watched her go into her room and knocked on the door for directions. Officer asked him why he was in the back parking lot of a hotel watching her; and he couldn't provide a reasonable answer. Mr. Jeffers stated that his zipper was broke on his pants. Some of the incident was captured on video from the motel. Officer arrested Mr. Jeffers for indecent exposure.

ministrative, and preventive maintenance costs in order to continue serving older adults. The funds may also be used to offset capital projects for the upkeep and operations of their facilities and equipment.

"Senior centers in our state help our friends, family, and neighbors remain active and ensure a state of independence for aging Tennesseans," said James Dunn, TCAD Executive Director. "With the General Assembly's intent to reach senior centers at each corner of our state, the Commission developed an application process prioritizing distressed and at-risk counties. Many of these senior centers were greatly impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic, and, as a result, so was the population they serve. These funds are welcome news for our senior centers, and I look forward to the significant impact they will make."

TCAD received 130 full applications representing 86 of the state's 95 counties. After utilizing the competitive, objective criteria, 80 senior centers throughout 59 counties were individually awarded $5,000 grants.

FBI

lights safety awareness and the Bureau's essential role in the community.

FBI leaders recently recognized the alumni association's 58 chapters and their uniquely local efforts to help their neighbors while also helping the FBI carrying out its mission to protect and serve.

"Everything the FBI is trying to accomplish depends upon having the trust and support of the American people," FBI Deputy Director Paul Abbate said at the group's annual conference in Las Vegas in September. "You spent time during your weeks at the Citizens Academy getting to know us. And now as alumni, you're taking time to educate your friends and neighbors about us. By doing so, you're building bridges between law enforcement and your communities."

FBI field offices invite local community, civic, and religious leaders to join the Citizens Academy to help build lines of communication between the FBI and the neighborhoods it serves. Like their communities, every alumni association is different, with a unique set of needs.

For example, in Norfolk, the local chapter partnered with the FBI field office there to develop and host recruitment seminars that emphasized diversity, women, and careers in science, technology, engineering, and math (STEM). The Boston chapter donated hundreds of masks and hand sanitizers to local shelters, veterans' facilities, and community centers at the onset of the pandemic. In Albuquerque, the alumni association chapter formed a rapid response team to serve meals and snacks to first responders.

The Minneapolis chapter was recognized with the national organization's top community service award for donation drives to support human trafficking victims and families in the Twin Cities that were affected by civil unrest after the death of George Floyd. Every chapter has similar initiatives, along with scores of unsung heroes.

"I never want you to think your service goes unnoticed," Deputy Director Abbate told hundreds of conference attendees. "The work you're doing is not only the foundation for the FBI's success at the local level, it's the very definition of community and citizenship."

Alicia Wadas has served as the alumni association's national board of directors president since January. In 2007, the marketing and advertising executive helped a client develop a safe online surfing campaign for the alumni association, which she had never heard of. She was invited to the Phoenix Field Office's Citizens Academy the following year, and has been involved as an alum ever since.

"This is service above self," she said, "and we're all here working toward that goal to work with our friends in the FBI, to help them extend their community outreach so that they ultimately can keep us all safe."

Tracey Ballinger, a program manager in the FBI's Community Relations Unit, has largely overseen the Citizens Academy program and the Bureau's relationship with the non-profit organization and its chapters since the beginning 28 years ago. She said alumni play an outsize role in amplifying the FBI's message.

"They do this by providing public education programs to raise awareness of community safety issues such as cybercrime, opioid addiction, human trafficking, hate crimes, and online scams," Ballinger said. "They are one of the FBI's true gems."

Horoscopes

choice between poetry and physics, you wouldn't hesitate. Poetry. Today is about interpretation, not analysis. A change in the atmosphere over the next few days is going to affect your thinking. You should expect some confusion in your contact with the people closest to you.

Capricorn 12/22-01/19

Do you have a talent for writing? You seem to have a precise and clear way of expressing yourself. And it's possible you use this gift of yours in your career. Today you might want to use it to express your feelings about someone. Whether you write to a family member or compose a love letter, you'll be particularly inspired.

Aquarius 1/20-2/18

You have a pleasant day ahead. People may be a little less playful, but they'll be all the more caring in their relationships. That's just how you like them! Everything is on your side for you to express your feelings to someone close. Do it now! This atmosphere will only last a few days.

Pisces 2/19-3/20

You should expect to feel warmth in your contact with other people today. Your relations will have something particularly tender and caring about them. It's like people are suddenly much more attentive and sensitive. The universe is like one big, happy family. You can confide in other people. Don't be afraid to talk about your most intimate feelings with a friend.

Aries 3/21-4/19

You won't be disappointed today. Over the next few days you're going to put your analytical way of thinking aside and let your feelings guide you. You'll be attentive to the people you love. If someone needs your help, you can be counted on to come to the rescue. You'll spare them the lecture about what they've done wrong!

Taurus 4/20-5/20

Today is great for creativity, especially the kind that shows your special style. You're productive, although what you've been creating is just a reflection of the latest fashions. This is one of your drawbacks, as it keeps you from being true to your special style. Today you should use your feelings as your inspiration.

Gemini 5/21-6/20

Today someone might ask what you're thinking about. You often think about things that are inaccessible to others. Today it will be like you've gone inside yourself on your quest for answers to spiritual questions or the secrets of life. Just tell him or her you're trying to rest, as they probably won't understand what you're thinking about anyway.

Cancer 6/21-7/22

You love to have very serious discussions about important issues well into the night. You rebuild the world the way you'd like to see it with your friends. But now you start yawning around ten and are in bed within the hour. This is true today, too. Are you tired or do you need to be alone to think about things?

Leo 7/23-8/22

Do you often act as if the world is static and nothing ever changes? Sometimes you may think that humankind is a certain way, the world is a certain way, and so this is what you're going to do. Have you ever heard of evolution? The human race is constantly evolving, and so is the world. Look around!

Virgo 8/23-9/22

Today let your emotions mingle with your thoughts. What good is telling yourself that you must like something if you really can't stand it? What good are grand principles if your heart isn't in them? Take the time to put your head in sync with your heart today.

Libra 9/23-10/22

Today you may feel like going into your past. One half of you feels nostalgia for the "good old days." The other half lives for the future and is unafraid to project into the unknown. Even though this sounds a bit contradictory, both these sides of you help the world move forward. Think about this today.

Scorpio 10/23-11/21

You're sensitive to the world around you. It's like you're thinking with your heart. It's possible you'll be more impressionable and less objective when your emotions get the better of you in your relationships. If you'd hoped to hide something from someone, it won't work. Even if you say nothing, it's written on your face.
