Director Honors Those 'Who've Paid That Terrible Price for Us'

FBI Director Christopher Wray thanked the nation's law enforcement officers for their work keeping communities safe while also recognizing the need to build—and rebuild—the trust of the people they serve. Wray's remarks were delivered in observance of National Police Week, an annual tribute to the local, state, and federal officers who died in the line of duty.

"Every time one of our agencies loses someone in the line of duty, it's heartbreaking," Wray said. "It's heartbreaking for the families who've lost a loved one, for the departments and agencies that lost a friend and colleague, and for the communities who've lost an ally and protector."

Police Week is observed every May; in 1961, President John F. Kennedy declared May 15 Peace Officers Memorial Day, and Police Week is the week on which it falls. The week has traditionally been an opportunity for law enforcement officers to gather for fellowship events, but the COVID-19 pandemic has put many in-person events on hold until October.

"Like you, I'm disappointed that we can't be together in person this week," Wray said. "But I'm optimistic that by this fall, we'll be able to have the in-person Police Week events we all look forward to."

By several measures, last year was one of the deadliest for law enforcement. According to statistics reported to the FBI, 93 law enforcement officers were killed in line-of-duty incidents in 2020. Of these, 46 died as a result of criminal acts; 47 died in accidents.

"We're proud to continue working side-by-side with you to protect our families and our communities."

Christopher Wray, FBI Director

In February, the FBI lost

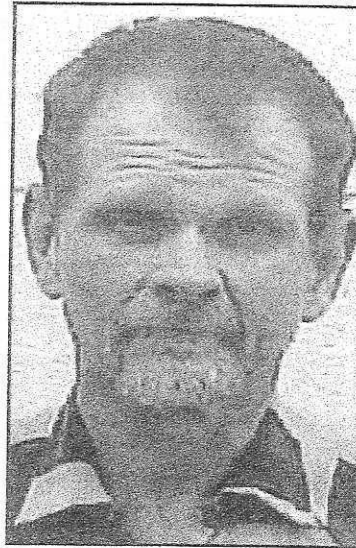

two special agents, Dan Alfin and Laura Schwartz-enger, who were killed while executing a search warrant in Florida. Director Wray thanked everyone who offered condolences and expressed support for the Bureau.

Horoscopes

It's likely to open new horizons for you at a time when the future may have seemed bleak. If old issues related to your family resurfaced some time ago, they may be resolved in a surprising way today. In any case, this is an ideal opportunity to seek answers from your ancestors.

Cancer 6/21-7/22

Several days ago you may have experienced a strong feeling of connection. People close to you opened their hearts and expressed their hopes for the future. Today you're likely to feel new ambitions budding, Cancer, which may have been initiated by the earlier experience. The day's aspects are bound to inspire you!

Leo 7/23-8/22

There are some wonderful surprises in store for you, Leo. They could come in the form of a new career opportunity or potential dates. With the current planetary aspects, you can avail yourself of the best ways to find personal and professional fulfillment. Don't hesitate to be original. That quality will trump everything else!

Virgo 8/23-9/22

You can look forward to a day full of satisfaction, Virgo. You may have made a strong impression on the people around you as you learned to moderate your outspokenness. Supportive friends surround you today. Everyone seems willing to listen, and they trust you implicitly. It looks as though you're finding a place for yourself!

Libra 9/23-10/22

You're definitely going to appreciate the harmony today, Libra. After the confrontational mood of the past several days, it looks as though you will be able to rest a bit. If you feel somewhat weary, it's for good reason. Today provides a good opportunity to rid yourself of the burdens people are trying to make you carry.

Scorpio 10/23-11/21

The day will come when an authority applauds you for your work or research. Only then will you understand that you've let yourself be fooled by society. Much as you believe otherwise, society isn't trying to stifle you or stop you from being you, Scorpio. It's true that pioneers often aren't recognized until they can show some results.

Sagittarius 11/22-12/21

You may feel that certain values in your profession won't let you undertake certain activities. But are you sure about this, or have you tried to convince yourself of it so you won't have to confront the part of you that yearns to explore? Perhaps you should try to be braver than you've been. It would be worth it.

Capricorn 12/22-01/19

Here you go again, philosophizing about what personal expression, creation, and authenticity are all about. Have you noticed that you have some problems expressing issues that don't fall within the norm, Capricorn? Your strong will and desire to be appreciated get in your way. It isn't easy to express yourself authentically when you're trying to make an impression on others.

Aquarius 1/20-2/18

Think about tolerance, Aquarius, and notice to what extent it can liberate you. If you let others do and think what they like, you will find that you grant yourself this same right. This is the issue of the day for you. It's when you don't allow cultural norms to ruffle your feathers that you can liberate yourself.

Pisces 2/19-3/20

Why not say yes a little more than usual, Pisces? You can be stubborn and want to do only what you want. It isn't easy to lead you into the unknown. You like to prepare in advance. Today when people make unusual propositions, why not go agree? Go on - jump in without looking for a change. It will do wonders for your outlook.

Aries 3/21-4/19

You could write fiction or journalism well today. There's a good possibility that you have given some thought to a literary line of work. Why do you hesitate? It's never too late. Find the time to write a story. If you have a negative attitude about the things you do, how will you get anything done?

Taurus 4/20-5/20

Today is your day, Taurus! Do your best to make your mark on the people around you, especially those closest to your heart. You will outdo yourself, grabbing attention without even meaning to. You will be considered very attractive. Don't be surprised if your calendar fills up. This is your reward for all your work over the past few weeks.

Largest CDC COVID-19 Vaccine Effectiveness Study in Health Workers Shows mRNA Vaccines 94% Effective

Geographically diverse population included across 33 sites in 25 U.S. states

A new CDC study adds to the growing body of real-world evidence (outside of a clinical trial setting) showing that COVID-19 mRNA vaccines authorized by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) protect health care personnel (HCP) against COVID-19. mRNA vaccines (Pfizer-BioNTech and Moderna) reduced the risk of getting sick with COVID-19 by 94% among HCP who were fully vaccinated. This assessment, conducted in a different study network with a larger sample size from across a broader geographic area than in the clinical trials, independently confirms U.S. vaccine effectiveness findings among health care workers that were first reported March 29.

Data for this assessment come from a network covering 500,000 HCP across 33 sites in 25 U.S. states, providing additional robust evidence that mRNA vaccines are effective against symptomatic illness in real-world conditions.

The assessment compared vaccination status of participants who tested positive for SARS-CoV-2, the virus that causes COVID-19 (cases) with vaccination status of those who tested negative (controls). Among the 1,843 participants, there were 623 cases and 1,220 controls. Vaccine effectiveness estimates were calculated by comparing the odds of COVID-19 vaccination in cases and controls. The large sample size in this study allowed for a precise vaccine effectiveness estimate with narrower confidence intervals than earlier CDC findings published March 29.

Understanding vaccine effectiveness among HCP is important because they are at higher risk for exposure to SARS-CoV-2 through patient interactions. Vaccination of HCP protects them and their patients against COVID-19 and ensures continuation of critical health care services.

The assessment found that COVID-19 symptomatic illness was reduced by 94% among HCP who were fully vaccinated, defined in this study as seven or more days after receipt of a second vaccine dose, and by 82% among those who were partially vaccinated, defined in this study as 1-4 days after receipt of dose one through six days after dose two. These findings support CDC's recommendation that everyone should get both doses of an mRNA COVID-19 vaccine to get the most protection.
